Bosco leads Baby Race charge in ROK at Lonato

Baby Race stays on top. In the national ROK event at Lonato, a preparation for the ROK World Cup event to be held this weekend at the same track, Luca Bosco cruised to an authoritative win in the Junior ROK class, where Alexey Brizhan finished sixth. Baby Race impressed in the Mini National too thanks to Patrick Fraboni, who placed second, just 0.9s off of the winner. Francesco Lorandi ran in the same category and ended up ninth.

In the Mini ROK category, Nikita Bedrin returned to the Baby Race stable after a period spent in Russia to take P5. Bedrin was the only Baby Race to gain access to the A main. In the second main, Morgan Carson was fourth, while Max Popov entered the top 10 in ninth.

The other results were: Noah Baker 11th, Diego Contecha 14th, Manson Logan 22st, Brando Badoer 23th, Paul Bocuse 28th, Alex Powell 34th. Alessandro Cenedese did not get through the heat phase. Last but not least, Xsenia Phoenix drove in OKJ in an honorable fifth position.
