CRG LEADING DKM'S KZ2 WITH THREE DRIVERS

Stan Pex claimed a double win in Kerpen's KZ2 and installed himself in the second place of the standings. Fabian Federer is the new classification leader thanks to two second places. Jorrit Pex slipped down to third. Emilien Denner (Kali-Kart) had two DNFs in KZ2 Cup, but is still keeping the classification lead.

The fourth round of the German Championship DKM in Kerpen launched three CRG drivers on top of the KZ2 classification: Stan Pex monopolized the victory of the two finals and climbed up to P2 in the standings, but two second places earned Fabian Federer (Team SRP) the classification lead. Jorrit Pex lost the first position due to a retirement in Race-2 and stands now third. The final sprint of the series will take place in Genk next August 26th. The overall classification follows: 1. Federer points 205; 2. Pex Stan 172; 3. Pex Jorrit 160.

The situation is more complicated in KZ2 Cup instead, where Emilien Denner (Kali-Kart) saw his advantage reduced after two retirements in as many finals in Kerpen. Denner is still leading the classification but his margin has now been reduced to 23 points.

In OK Niels Troger (Team RTG) secured P2 in Race-1 on CRG-lame, while Kas Haverkort (Zanardi) was third in Race-2 and confirmed his P3 in the overall standings. In OK-Junior Alfio Andrea Spina secured a good seventh place on CRG-Tm in Race-2, while Enzo Scionti was 14th in Race-1.

The next round of DKM will take place in Genk (B) next August 26th. Complete results are available at www.kart-dm.de/en/home/.
