

First chance to size up the ADAC GT Masters class of 2019

- Official test days at Motorsport Arena Oschersleben
- Warm-up for the season opener (26th - 28th April)

Munich: New supercars, new teams, new drivers – the public will get a first opportunity to look at the ADAC GT Masters line-up for 2019 on 8th and 9th April at Motorsport Arena Oschersleben. Three weeks before the opening fixture of the 2019 season (26th - 28th April), the ADAC GT Masters will stage a preview there. Fans are welcome to attend the preseason tests, which will also feature the new ADAC GT4 Germany for the first time as well as testing for the 2019 ADAC Formula 4 and the ADAC TCR Germany.

The ADAC GT Masters debut of the new Aston Martin Vantage GT3 is eagerly awaited, and the new model of the Porsche 911 GT3 R will also be vying for centre stage. Coming out from under their wraps will be the Evo versions of the Audi R8 LMS and the Lamborghini Huracán GT3. There will also be considerable interest in the new drivers such as Fabian Vettel, brother of Sebastian Vettel, putting in his first laps in the Super Sports Car League at the wheel of a Mercedes-AMG GT3 prepared by Mann Filter Team HTP Motorsport.

Oschersleben will also be hosting tests for the new ADAC GT4 Germany series, the ADAC TCR Germany and ADAC Formula 4. Fans will get a foretaste of the ADAC GT4 Germany as early as 7th April when Arena Autofrühling stages a full dress rehearsal for the series. The ADAC TCR Germany and the ADAC Formula 4 will be out on the track on 9th and 10th April.

Fans are welcome on all three days at the Motorsport Arena. Day tickets for the price of €5.00 can be purchased on the day at the gate.
